Female mechanic attracts new business

By Kristine J. Abbey
Staff Writer

The ASI Hobby Garage has a new variety of clientele since Sherry Lucero began working there.

Roger Bowman, director of the Hobby Garage, a place where students can use tools and get some assistance while working on their cars, said more women have been coming to the garage because of Lucero.

"A place like this can have an intimidating atmosphere to ladies who don't know a lot about cars," Bowman said. He said having a woman on the staff is less intimidating, and that Lucero brings in business because people know she works there.

Lucero regularly has one or two women come in to work on their cars every time she works — every Friday from 3 to 6 p.m. and whenever another member of the four-person staff takes time off. She said the women work on anything from carburetor linkage problems to general maintenance.

"I think it's a trend," she said. "A lot of women are understanding there's a lot of things they can do and this facility gives them the opportunity to try it out."

"Women do it because it's easy. Once you know how to change oil it's easy," Lucero added that it can be a lot cheaper to maintain a car when it's unnecessary to take it to a mechanic.

Groups give holiday cheer to the needy

By Kristine J. Abbey
Staff Writer

The holiday season is a time when families get together and memories are made. The word Christmas usually brings thoughts of decorating a tree, stringing popcorn, last-minute shopping and huge feasts.

But for those who are without such pleasures or someone with whom to share them, the season doesn't mean any of these things. Instead it can bring loneliness and depression. For some, Christmas can be just like any other day — a struggle to survive.

Many local and student groups have recognized the need to help such people during the holidays and have organized ways to give help to the needy.

Many student groups have already gotten into the Christmas spirit through the ASI holiday sharing drive.

A Christmas tree in the University Union will be decorated with ornaments representing each student group taking part in the sharing drive.

The Intra-Fraternity Council and Panhellenic have taken part in the drive by sectioning off the town and organizing all the house members to knock on doors to get donations of canned food. The cans will be donated to People's Kitchen, an organization in San Luis Obispo that will disperse them to the needy.

"We did this last year," said Alan Vander Horst of IFC, "and we're going to start doing it every year. It gets our name out and gets the spirit going for Christmas."

KCPR and Mustang Daily are having a canned food and toy drive for Grass Roots II, an organization that aids the needy and homeless, during dead week and will have a barrel and a table in the U.U. Frank Warren of KCPR said they will accept cans, baskets, toys, Christmas wrap, decorations, and anything in good shape.

Warren said giving during the holiday season shows that college students can make a difference.

"It shows what the student media is capable of doing. It's a great PR move to get the name associated with a philan-

Flu season means danger to some

A few days of discomfort result for most, but others die

Happy Turkey Day

Elderly people and many patients with chronic lung and heart diseases are highly susceptible to potentially fatal complications of flu.

According to the American Lung Association, people falling into any of the following categories should be vaccinated each fall: People 65 or older, people with asthma, emphysema, hypertension, rheumatic heart condition, atherosclerosis, diabetes, anemia, or kidney ailments.

Residents of nursing homes and other care facilities should also be vaccinated along with health care personnel who have contact with high-risk patients.

During an influenza epidemic the number of deaths in the United States increases by at least 10,000.

"As many as 80 percent of high-risk Americans are not vaccinated against flu each year," says Dr. Norman H. Edelman, Scientific Affairs Consultant for the American Lung Association. "A high percentage of those individuals who get the flu go on to develop pneumonia, which can result in death or extended disability."

Every year since 1979 flu and pneumonia combined have become the sixth leading cause of death in the U.S. In 1985 flu was responsible for 188.5 million sick bed days and 348 million restricted activity days.

The epidemic season for flu starts in the fall and continues into spring. The most likely months for catching flu are January through March.

The best time to be vaccinated, according to the American Lung Association, is before mid-November. This allows time for

Charity robbed — 3 turkeys missing

Grass Roots II, an organization that aids the needy in such ways as an annual Thanksgiving dinner, was robbed Saturday — an occurrence that has also become an annual event.

Grass Roots II workers suspect the thief may have been a homeless person.

An intruder broke the deadbolt on the door and entered, searching for cash and food, according to director Maxine Lewis. The thief was unable to find any cash or checks, as none are kept on the premises, but was able to escape with three turkeys and assorted foodstuffs, such as tuna, chili, cheese and chicken. Also missing are various toiletry items like soap and shampoo.

Last year, an intruder got away with about $2,000 in checks and cash.

Lewis said the robbery won't affect the annual dinner sponsored by the organization, as there are 45 to 50 turkeys remaining. Before the police had left the scene, she said, four more turkeys had been donated for the feast.

It is unfortunate the robbery occurred, she added, because "(the thief) could've gotten food if they'd asked."

Grass Roots II volunteers are continuing in their plans to prepare for Wednesday's dinner today and tomorrow, to which the community is invited to enjoy musical entertainment and one heck of a feast.

Act now, for t's the season to profit

In his classic literary work, Charles Dickens celebrates with great enthusiasm the conversion of Ebenezer Scrooge from a cold, uncaring Christmas hater to great philanthropist and humanist. But Dickens' apparent satisfaction with Scrooge's conversion must be critically examined. Replacing an apparently rigid belief system with one that is equally rigid can at best bring only a limited benefit.

I believe Scrooge's outlook on life would not have had to change as extensively as it did in order to Eisenhower moved Thanksgiving ahead one week in response to concern in the business community that the otherwise late Thanksgiving might have an impact on the American people's Christmas shopping opportunities. Although Scrooge probably was not thrilled with American independent ways, he surely appreciated profit when he smelled it.

Sometimes, the appearance of charity is also good for business. Scrooge might find it a good investment to provide a Christmas dinner for those business acquaintances who had been trapped in the Christmas spirit. As long as this maximized profit, there would be no problem.

Even though Tiny Tim might not have looked like much of a profit opportunity to the naked eye, make a rational businessman see the light. Granted, you should not waste a tremendous amount of energy fighting an inevitable event, but it might have been possible for Scrooge to accept the annual occurrence of Christmas on his own terms.

Scrooge's outlook on life would not have had to be changed as extensively as Dickens forced it in order to make a rational businessman see the light.

While no one should force Scrooge to give away Christmas presents in a frivolous manner, he could perhaps be convinced of the profit that would accrue to him, provided he made the right investments, by promoting the start of the Christmas season in September. It might even be worthwhile for Scrooge to let some of his employees go home early one Saturday to make sure they would have adequate time to shop in his stores. (All right, I concede that maybe he should make them bring back receipts on Monday morning.) For those who lacked cash at the moment, Scrooge might have taken advantage of the fact that usury laws were not at the common by generously deferring payments until March of the following year.

If he had lived longer, Scrooge might have found it inspiring to experience the year in which the late President Dwight D.

As is apparent, Lars Perner is a graduate student in business administration concentrating in marketing.

OPINION

Thanksgiving is a lot more than just an excuse

Well here it is Thanksgiving time again. A day we set aside to pause and reflect on the blessings that life in America has bestowed upon us.

But have we lost the real meaning of Thanksgiving? Is it just another Thursday; just an excuse to get away from it all, to eat, drink and watch football on television?

Have we become so self-absorbed as a nation that we can no longer see the meaning of the holiday through our own selfishness? Have our national problems numbed us to the point where we are unable to see the "thanks" in Thanksgiving?

As a nation we face some big problems. Ranging from economic crisis to threats of war in the Middle East. From poverty and homelessness in our country to Soviet expansionism in Central America.

As college students, we are worried about our grades and finals, and what our futures will bring.

Where will it end?

The fact of the matter is it won't end. Every generation is faced with problems and dilemmas of seemingly disastrous proportions. Yet life goes on and we're still here.

To live in a world as chaotic as this, one must be able step back and place the world in proper perspective. To separate himself from day-to-day problems and recognize that there is some hope and goodness in the world.

This is not to say that we should forget or try to shelter ourselves from problems, but for sanity's sake we must, at times, be able look at the positive side of life.

This to me is what Thanksgiving is all about.

After all, despite its problems, this nation has survived. In our relatively short 200-year history, we have become the most powerful nation on earth.

The fact that the nation has endured is reason enough to celebrate. That despite the differences of its people, it remains a nation where the free exchange of ideas can still exist.

We are a nation of great fortune. Unlike many nations, the vast majority of our people enjoy the basic human rights and necessities needed to live a full and productive life.

Yet there is no doubt that we can, and must, improve. Many of our own people are not given the opportunity to reach their goals, but for 200 years we have progressed and will continue to progress.

Thanksgiving is a time to put aside the problems and enjoy the success we, as a nation, have achieved. Because if we are to solve the problems, we must have hope, and hope is what Thanksgiving is all about.

Letters to the editor

Column smells of discriminatory intent

Editor:

The point of this letter is NOT to educate your readers about the University Union Galerie. If Mr. Ruby was interested in doing that he would have done his homework, gotten the facts and probably determined (as everyone else who has bothered to ask knows) that students are getting more and better programs than their dollars actually reflect.

The point of this letter is NOT to correct the sloppy reporting in Mr. Ruby's column (Nov. 23). The U.U. budget is available for public scrutiny. Anyone who can read can see that my actual salary does not even approach Mr. Ruby's figure, let alone exceed it, not to mention the fact that it's not even close to that of my peers in terms of education and experience.

The point of this letter is simply to ask Mr. Ruby: What possible connection is there between my husband's professional position and mine?

Are you suggesting that the district attorney is somehow forcing the university to pay me? Or do you feel that professional women have no right to be paid if they happen to be married to professional men?

Your brand of sexism and discrimination is an embarrassment to any publication, especially that of a campus like Cal Poly.

Congratulations, Mr. Ruby. If your intention was to give a black eye to responsible journalists, you have succeeded.

— Jeanne LaBarbera
Director, University Union
Galerie

Editor:

We respect the right of your Opinion columnist Earl Ruby to raise questions about U.U. program funding. We may not agree with his analysis, but there is a need to raise questions about how student money is spent.

We are, however, very surprised that he and your Opinion editor, Matt Weiser, who chose to highlight specific comments, are such sexists in their point of view. LaBarbera was not hired because of her husband's status. We do not know on what facts such an assumption could be based!

LaBarbera holds a master of arts degree and is completing a Ph.D. in art history. She has taught in Cal Poly's art department. She was hired as a result of a nationwide search before her husband's election to his current post. Her wages are based on a comparable state category (student services professional II), a position she exceeds the requirements for, and a position that does not pay $35,000.

Women still suffer discrimination in the workplace, but not in ASI. How can Mustang Daily legitimize sexual discrimination in print?

— Donald DeJong
chair, ASI personnel policy committee

Editor:

What gives Earl C. Ruby III the right to publicly embarrass and sexually demean Jeanne LaBarbera? Is Ruby such a perfect human being and journalist to be relieved of any obligation to sexual equity?

Earl, are women, in your opinion, only as good as their husband's power base and unable to achieve significant employment in their own right? And on the issue of pay, should we pay them less because they are women?

Obviously, the students on UEC need your guidance on employment matters. Would you please give these students and our staff your advice?

Roger L. Conway

Whale shows to lack trainers for water stunts after injuries

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Killer whale shows at Sea World, marred by injuries to three trainers in three months, will temporarily exclude stunts in which trainers join the huge mammals in the pool, park officials said Monday.

"We have decided not to use trainers in ... the shows for the time being," Sea World spokesman Jackie Hill said after the third and most serious injury to a killer whale trainer.

John Sillick, 26, suffered broken ribs, a broken leg and a fractured pelvis Saturday when a six-ton whale landed on him as he rode on the back of a second whale during a performance.

Sillick, a Sea World trainer for two years, was listed in serious condition Monday at UC San Diego Medical Center. He has undergone two operations since Saturday to repair the damage, hospital spokeswoman Eileen Callahan said.

"The first one was for abdominal injuries and the second one was for orthopedic (injuries)," Callahan said.

Trainer Chris Barlow was injured slightly Sept. 30 when a whale bumped into him during a performance, and two days earlier a whale bit trainer Mark McHugh on the hand during a training exercise.

Hill said she wasn't sure how long it would be before trainers resumed showtime water activities.

"I don't know how long it will be," Hill said. "I can only assume it has something to do with the (trainers') comfort level. We are all very much concerned about John, and that makes it hard for all of us."

Sillick was involved in a "breach" stunt with the whales at the time of the accident. Breaching, or launching above the water surface, is natural for whales.

Thanksgiving dinner to be 18 percent cheaper this year

PARK RIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Here's good news! You can stuff yourself with 18 percent more food on Thanksgiving without it costing a penny more than last year.

Yes, folks, you can cook up a traditional dinner for yourself and nine friends and shell out an average of $24.51, down from the $29.75 it would have cost in 1986.

This is the calculation of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which surveyed prices in California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Kentucky, Minnesota, New York, Texas and Washington D.C.

Prices varied from market to market, with cheapest eats in California at $20.83, while the nation's capital set the high mark at $27.40.

A sharp dip in the price of turkey is the big factor for the cheaper feast.

"A 16 percent jump in turkey production combined with aggressive retail promotions makes this year's meal an exceptionally good buy," said Marsha Purcell, Farm Bureau spokeswoman.

"Best of all, our sample menu provides ample leftovers," she added.

In the markets surveyed, the average price for a 16-pound self-basting turkey was 68 cents a pound, compared with 89 cents last year.

During this year's key marketing period, wholesale turkeys fell to a low of 45 cents a pound, down from 85 cents in 1986.

Many stores are featuring turkeys at below wholesale costs, with the lowest prices reported in the Midwest and California.

Other items that are significantly cheaper this year include cranberries, sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie mix and rolls.

Student violence intensifies as Korean elections approach

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Students hurled firebombs at government presidential candidate Roh Tae-woo on Monday and an opposition leader said Roh would suffer the same fate as Ferdinand E. Marcos if he won the Dec. 16 elections unfairly.

The gasoline bombs thrown by radical students near Kyongsang University in the southern port city of Masan did not hit any of Roh's 13-car motorcade. The attackers fled and no arrests were made, police said.

Candidates Kim Young-sam and Kim Dae-jung said the outcome of the elections will sway South Korea either to democracy or what they said would be continued military rule.

"We are at the crossroads," Kim Young-sam told thousands of supporters at a campaign rally in Jumchon, 115 miles southeast of Seoul.

"If Mr. Roh Tae-woo does not abide by fair rules, he would become another Marcos."

Marcos, for 20 years the authoritarian president of the Philippines, was driven into Hawaiian exile in February 1986 by a "people's power" uprising.

Election-related violence, unfair electioneering and an opposition call for ending military rule are emerging as the main campaign issues.

Radicals have repeatedly attacked Roh and other candidates with rocks, firebombs and other missiles on campaign appearances in provincial areas.

Speaking later Monday to 200,000 people at a campaign rally near Masan, Roh did not mention the firebomb attack but said leftist movements would intensify if the opposition wins the December elections.

"A small number of violent leftists will stage disturbances," Roh said.

Locals are unable to stop racist speech at Glendale Holiday Inn

GLENDAL (AP) — Racist J.B. Stoner disgraced the city with a weekend message of hate that spawned fistcuffs from an angry mob, the mayor said Monday, regretting that the city has no legal way to keep out hate-mongers.

"If somebody can come up with a legal way to do it, they will get my vote," said Mayor Ginger Bremberg, who called Sunday's speech and protest in the Los Angeles suburb "absolutely disgusting."

A mob enraged by the speaking engagement of the nationally known racist chased and beat a group of teen-age white supremacist "skinheads," but police in riot gear held off further violence.

About 300 people turned out to protest the speech at the Holiday Inn by Stoner, a 63-year-old white supremacist who told less than two dozen followers that God is using the deadly disease AIDS to destroy blacks.

"There were only 13 (white supremacists) who came to listen to the senile old fool and there were hundreds protesting it," the mayor said, blaming the media in part for violence outside the hotel.

"I have several suggestions ... every radio and television station not show up and give them a forum and ... those who like violence stay out of Glendale," she said.

The city's taxpayers have told their elected officials "to keep them out of town," the mayor said. "We do have a permitting process for assembly, but do you think we can challenge it all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court?"

"It saddens me deeply that these congenital idiots use our city."

The head of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors had urged the hotel to cancel Stoner's reception.

"The Holiday Inn should never extend its hospitality to hate mongers who seek to pit race against race and American against American," Supervisor Mike Antonovich said in a telegram to the hotel.

Hotel manager Pat Duncan said she was not aware of the group's message when the meeting room was booked two months ago.

"We do not agree with Mr. Stoner's views and in no way support them," Duncan said, adding the hotel regretfully honored their commitment allowing Stoner to speak.

The supervisor's staff worked through the weekend in an unsuccessful attempt to get the Holiday Inn to cancel Stoner's appearance, said Antonovich aide Dawson Oppenheimer.

Irv Rubin, who led a Jewish Defense League contingent of protesters outside the Holiday Inn, said a boycott of Holiday Inns was being considered.

Glendale authorities, having faced a similar confrontation in June that ended in a scuffle between white supremacists and protesters, were prepared for the emotionally-charged scene 10 miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles.

But violence did erupt about 2:30 p.m. when about 45 angry protesters shouting "Nazi scum" chased and beat the skinheads, who are identified by their cropped hair, olive bomber jackets, chains and combat boots. Two of the youths suffered minor facial cuts. The others fled.

Stoner was convicted in 1983 for the 1958 bombing of the predominantly black Bethel Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala.

HOOPS/Mustangs

Outside shooting and brains the key

Guards inherit bigger role after loss of dynamic duo

By Floyd Jones

In the movie "Hoosiers," Gene Hackman as coach takes his small-town Indiana high school team to the state championship. Minutes before the big game, a preacher relates the Biblical story of David and Goliath to the team.

David was only a quarter of Goliath's size, and he went to meet the armored giant with only a sling and a few stones. He went into battle on his own terms and with the only resources he had.

Hackman also wanted his team to play their game, and their game only. After all, as far as size and speed, they were at a disadvantage.

In a way, the context in which that story was told relates to the Cal Poly basketball team. With last year's two most explosive players graduated, head coach Steve Beason is playing with a hand similar to Hackman's.

Forwards Sean Chambers and Melvin Parker, who averaged 19 and 16 points per game respectively, were the backbone of a team that liked to run. The past two years, they led the charge to capture California Collegiate Athletic Association titles.

Guard Mark Otta was also a piston in the Mustangs' engine, particularly near the end of the season, when he sank game-winning shots in the waning seconds of two games. Otta (6-2) is back, joined by fellow seniors Darren Masingale (6-8 center), Jeff Gray (6-2 guard) and Mark Shelby (6-1 guard). But the team on which they will play is a lot different.

"Last year was like trying to change the tires going 50 mph," Beason said. "There just wasn't time to regroup" once players got their momentum going. Now, with a shortage of height and speed, the Mustangs should not have much trouble regrouping.

"We have to play smart basketball," Beason said.

That statement involves a lot. Not that last year's team did not play smart. It did. But the Mustangs also made up for mistakes with sheer athletic ability. With no comparably explosive athletes to do most of the work this season, scoring — and winning — will have to be the result of total team effort: few fouls, smart passes, blocking out on the boards ... the list goes on.

Beason said the Mustangs know their shortcomings, and he calls his players bright and hard-working.

There are other strong points. "We have a lot of good shooters," Beason said.

That will spread opposing defenses, making it tougher to doubleteam key players. Otta is one with a hot hand. Two others are sophomore Mitch Pierce and freshman Shawn Reed.

Many players are interchangeable, which Beason said will provide flexibility. Also, players are likely to be stronger due to a new year-round weightlifting schedule.

In a way, Beason is starting from scratch in his second year.

Point guard Jeff Gray returns to run the show. DARYL SHOPTAUGH/Mustang Daily

There has been more time to prepare this year than last season, when he replaced Ernie Wheeler just a few weeks before the season. He will have three new assistants: Steve Barnes, Gary Howard and Doug Weber.

Barnes, an assistant at Saddleback College the past two seasons, is assistant coach on the floor and in practice. Howard, an assistant at Barton County College in Kansas last season, will take care of recruiting, scouting and travel arrangements. Graduate assistant Weber will handle taping and film exchange.

Beason's criteria for choosing the coaches, all of whom he knew previously, are simple.

"It's going to sound corny," he said, "but I wanted solid, honest, hard-working people who were loyal to me."

Even with all the positives,

Beason said it is difficult to project them in terms of wins and losses.

But the seniors are optimistic. When asked about this year's team, they raised their eyebrows and said, "We're a lot better than I thought we were going to be."

Shelby described practices as intense, with everyone fighting for their own territory. To him, that intensity seems to be working — the younger Mustangs are playing hard and well. That's been the factor in the seniors' changed perceptions.

"During practice there's a lot of mouth, elbows and scratching," Shelby said. "But when we walk off the court we're all friends. That's what it's all about."

decided to take breath, they were enjoying a 55-32 halftime lead. The Lady Mustangs took the opening tip and never looked back, as they opened up leads of 11 points in less than five minutes and 16 points in less than seven.

Yes, this is the new and improved Cal Poly, which has opened the season with two straight wins.

Guard Jody Hasselfield's trio of three-point baskets helped establish the early lead. The freshman finished with 16 points, 12 of them in the first half, to go with six assists. Forward Russia Madden poured in 13 first-half points on her way to tying Hasselfield for game-high scoring honors. Madden also tallied 11 rebounds.

Thanks to Sacramento State's tough man-to-man defense to start the second half, the Lady Mustangs saw their running machine nearly come to a halt.

"We had trouble with our man-to-man offense Friday and tonight," said Cal Poly head coach Jill Orrock.

The second half may not always be the better half. Consider the numbers: The Lady Mustangs shot 63 percent in the opening 20 minutes before struggling to just 24 percent in the second half. That averaged out to 44 percent. The Lady Mustangs were outscored by the Hornets, 31-24, in the second half.

For Sacramento, however, it was too little too late. The Hornets, who dropped to 1-1, were paced by Tevoni Scott's 15 points and 12 rebounds.

With only nine healthy bodies, Orrock was pleased her team was able to maintain a steady pace See HOOPS, page 6

AT A GLANCE

•1986-87 RECORD: 19-10 overall, 10-4 California Collegiate Athletic Association (first-place tie).

•STARTERS BACK: 3.

•STARTERS LOST: 2.

•CCAA PREDICTION: 5th.

•STRENGTHS: shooting, player interchangeability.

•WEAKNESSES: height, speed.

•KEY PLAYERS: Darren Masingale must pick up the inside scoring slack left by the departure of Sean Chambers and Melvin Parker. Mark Otta must turn from being a pure shooter to a more complete player.

•POSSIBLE SURPRISE: After three years as a guard, Mark Shelby will be tried as Chambers' replacement at small forward. He is the closest to Chambers in pure athleticism.

Arizona State Duals

Pair of Mustangs win crowns

TEMPE, Ariz. — Two Cal Poly wrestlers won championships at the Arizona State Duals last weekend.

John Martin won the 142-pound class, while Eric Osborne was the winner at 167 pounds.

The six-squad meet had no team scoring.

Winning second places were Joe Pangelinan (118) and Anthony Romero (177). Third place finishers were John Galkowski (118), Owen Carlin (134), Malcolm Boykin (158) and Gabe Cortina (190). Robert Tabarez (126) and heavyweight Aaron Cantrell won fourth places.

"We wrestled very well," said

WRESTLING

head coach Lennis Cowell. "We are right on schedule as far as skills go. There is also a lot more intensity this year."

Cowell said he was especially pleased that the Mustangs performed well against Arizona State wrestlers. The Sun Devils are a Pac-10 rival and were ranked fifth nationally before the season.

Osborne won his title over Arizona State's Jim Gressley in a 16-10 decision. Martin defeated Arizona State's Jim Sinadinos, 8-5, to win his crown.

The Mustangs will travel to Cal State Bakersfield to face the Roadrunners in a dual meet Wednesday. Cal Poly is 1-0.

Poly opens season with split in dual meets

A trio of all-Americans combined to win four races, as the Cal Poly women's swimming team opened the season with a 98-53 victory over San Jose State last weekend.

The men lost to defending national champion Cal State Bakersfield, 133-65.

Barbara Carson won the 200-meter backstroke, Liz Linton the 1,000 and 500 freestyles, and Kym Rees the 200 breaststroke. Amy Ritter won the diving competition.

The Lady Mustangs swept the top three spots in the 1,000 freestyle, 200 backstroke and 200 breaststroke. They also won the 400 medley relay and 400 freestyle relay.

For the men, all-American Eric Rinde won the 200 individual medley and was second in the 200 breaststroke.

SPORTSBRIEFS

Survia named WFC player of the week

Cal Poly running back Allen Survia has been named the Western Football Conference's offensive player of the week for his performance in the Mustangs' 33-31 victory over Santa Clara Saturday.

Survia, a junior in his first year at Cal Poly, rushed for 194 yards on 25 carries. His touchdown runs of 63 and 11 yards in the fourth quarter put the Mustangs ahead to stay.

Six Cal Poly soccer players were named to the California Collegiate Athletic Association's all-conference teams.

On the first team are goalkeeper Eric Nelson, midfielder Paul Hansen, and defenders Jeff Meyer and Fabian Van De Graaf. Midfielder Pat Dwyer and forward Poe Allan made the second team.

The Cal Poly volleyball team closes its regular season tonight at Pepperdine. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

After defeating the Waves in three games earlier this season, the Lady Mustangs raised their lead in the all-time series to 16-1. Cal Poly, which is 17-11 overall and 9-9 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, will hear Sunday whether it will host a first-round match of the NCAA playoffs.

as someone who will provide explosiveness, as in athletic explosiveness.

Said Shelby, "I think if I can combine my explosiveness with the game plan, I don't think there will be any problem with that."

Otta projected ball control as the key to success.

"We can't just go down and throw up the first shot," he said. "We have to play as more of a team."

Otta, known formally as "Three-Point Man" and casually as "Ottamatic," sparked much excitement last year when he nailed 21 of 47 shots from the cheap seats. He doesn't expect to slack off on three-point attempts. Beason has given the OK to work from that range.

But three pointers or not, Otta said, "Our defense is going to win it for us."

throughout the game.

"I was amazed at their stamina and lung capacity this weekend," she said. "I wasn't sure how it was going to be. Thank goodness we stayed out of trouble for the most part."

Cal Poly will face Cal Lutheran Monday, before competing in the Cal State Hayward tournament the next weekend.

Poly rugby downs Broncos and Cardinal

In four games of good mauling tactics and crisp ballhandling, the Cal Poly rugby club soundly defeated Santa Clara and Stanford last weekend.

Both matches against the Santa Clara Broncos Saturday were hard-fought and close. The Mustangs pulled away in the second half of both matches, with the first team winning, 8-4, and the second team winning, 7-6.

Scorers for Cal Poly's first side were Roark Schultz and Art Tracewell. Second-side Mustang scorers were Robert Roose and Steve Davies.

In two muddy matches Sunday, Cal Poly routed the Stanford Cardinal, the first team by a score of 10-4, and the second team by 18-7. Scorers for the first side were Adam Bell and Dave Culler. Second-side points came from Roose, Greg Cahill and Bell, with conversions by Bob Silverthorne and Steve Davies.

RUGBY

"I definitely believe our mauling and lineout play was the key to our success this weekend," said coach Paul Fritz. "By controlling the ball within the forwards we were able to dominate the inside play before giving out to the backs, who created overlaps resulting in scores."

Fritz said superior conditioning and outstanding team play also helped cap the wins.

"I was very impressed, not only by the veteran players, but especially by the newer players who exhibited very good ballhandling skills and unity as a team on the field," Fritz said. "I feel the team has the ability to be one of the best university sides on the Pacific coast. It will take a big commitment by all players to attain this status, but the potential is definitely there."

The Mustangs will lock bodies with Loyola-Marymount at home Dec. 5.

Alumni nip Mustangs

It was the young guys against the old guys in the Cal Poly lacross club's annual alumni match Saturday.

The alumni must have summoned lots of kick — or at least a lot of players — to beat the Mustangs, 12-11. High scorers for the alumni were Bobby Jones, Gary Schare and Mark Anderson, all with three goals.

The Mustangs' high scorers were Jim Bognasio with four and Sean O'Brian with two. The Mustangs ran into trouble when they were outmanned on the field because of players in the penalty box.

Historic boats lie rotting in bay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The world's largest assembly of historic boats lies rotting and rust-covered along the waterfront, a victim of bureaucratic red tape.

The once-proud fleet includes the Eppleton Hall, the only paddle wheel tug to voyage across the Atlantic Ocean this century and probably the last.

When its former skipper, Jack Watson, 73, was rowed out to see his old command last week, its antique side-lever steam engine was filled with dead pigeons. The engine is the last of its kind in the world.

"It is disgraceful," said Watson. "I never dreamt she would be in such condition." Other dowagers of the fleet include the 97-year-old ferryboat Eureka and the C.A. Thayer, a handsome three-masted sailing schooner.

The boats are owned by the United States National Park Service, which has put off maintenance work so long the ships now need millions of dollars in repairs to remove dry rot, rust and pigeon dung, a deadly combination for all but the sturdiest of ships.

Proper upkeep would require a staff of 42 and an annual budget of $3 million, says Glennie Wall, manager of the National Maritime Museum of San Francisco. Wall has a staff of 23 and a budget under $1 million and calls the situation "frightening, really frightening."

Instead of the ships remaining as a floating museum for future generations, the three largest — the Eureka, the C.A. Thayer and the lumber steamer Wapama — are "threatened landmarks," she says.

FLU

antibodies to build up before the peak flu season.

Vaccinations need to be renewed every year because many different flu strains exist and new ones are always appearing. Each year a new vaccine is produced to fight off the strains currently causing disease around the world.

Although as many as 25 percent of those vaccinated get the flu, the case is milder and there are fewer life-threatening complications.

Individuals severely allergic to eggs should not get the vaccination because they may experience an extreme reaction. These people can take a drug called amantadine to ward off the flu.

Amantadine hydrochloride, an antiviral drug, can be used to prevent or treat influenza.

"When amantadine is used to treat patients with flu, the severity of the disease is reduced and recovery is faster," says Dr. Edelman. "It is important, however, that treatment start within two days after the first symptoms appear."

Information about flu vaccinations and amantadine can be obtained from the Health Center or a physician.

Summer sales show students' skills

By Carolyn Duvall
Staff Writer

Summer ... thoughts of hitting the beach, relaxing at home, or getting a job with a hometown fast food restaurant occupy many students' plans. But, some Cal Poly students take a different approach and travel across the United States to sell books door-to-door for three months.

About 4,000 to 5,000 students from colleges across the nation become representatives for the Southwestern Company, a book publishing house in Nashville, Tenn. Selling the books provides students with their own independent business to run for 12 weeks; their success or failure depends on their desire to succeed.

Most of the students have never had any previous sales experience, yet the average salary for first year sellers is $4,000 to $6,000. The Southwestern Company provides an intensive weeklong training program at the company headquarters.

Students sell educational books called the Volume Library. They were designed for children, but they benefit all ages. The two volume set costs $114.95, "which isn't bad when compared to $900 for an encyclopedia," said JoAnn Berger, a Cal Poly senior business major who ranked 66th on the book-selling hit parade in the nation her first year. The book is a problem solver, with information on many topics and examples in an easy-to-read format, said Berger. Students make $46 per sale as profit.

Most of the Cal Poly students heard about the program through their friends, and several thought it sounded like a fraudulent operation. "My parents were sure it was a scam," Berger said.

But even with disbelievers, the program really works. Cal Poly has become the top sales school in the nation, beating the University of Florida, the top-selling school for the past 10 years. Cal Poly also has the highest per person selling average, and the top seller in the nation.

Last summer, Kimi Kingsbury, a Cal Poly business major, made $18,700 in her first 12 weeks. "I learned not to quit, no matter how hot it was, and I learned to deal with problems," Kingsbury said. "You're trained to do well. You apply your skills in being a hard worker," she said.

Working hard to sell the books is part of the learning experience. Kingsbury said she worked an average of 13 1/2 hours a day. "Anything worthwhile will take time," she said. "Too many people think success comes easy."

All the booksellers work on commission — 40 percent. But, the program is not a get-rich-quick scheme, emphasized Tom McAuliff, Nashville sales manager. "It's a training program for college students," he said. "They're (the students) running their own businesses and they take the credit for their successes or failures."

Dennis Fernandes only sold one book his first week on the streets. "The best thing I learned was to handle setbacks," Fernandes said. "I think the best thing you can do for someone is to put them some place where they can fail."

Fernandes is no failure now; with 65 people under his direction, he is a field sales representative for the company.

The training the company provides is very good, and many large, national corporations, such as Xerox, send their representatives to observe the Southwestern Company's training program. "Many companies teach product knowledge to their employees, but they don't teach selling it (the product)," McAuliff said.

The company uses a non-manipulative sales pitch, not a hard-sell technique. Each student is given the exact sales talk to memorize and present to customers in their homes. The sellers average 20 to 30 houses a day, and spend less than 20 minutes per sale. "After 20 minutes people get bored," said Kingsbury.

"In two summers this program taught me to be more successful than going through four years in the business program," said business student Matt O'Haren.

The company has been working with Cal Poly students for only six years, but they have been in business since 1868 selling Bibles and educational books. Students are put in groups of three or four and usually live together in the area where they will be selling. They have student managers who have participated in the program to oversee their progress and help them with any problems they might have.

No special experience is needed to sell the books, just a desire to succeed. "A lot of people think they can't sell anything, but the company made over $30 million with inexperienced help. You're selling yourself and your ideas everyday. You're trying to get out of tests with professors, and trying to get other people to go do something," said Berger. "At first I was really scared, but when you look back, you wonder how you could stay in San Luis for the summer!"

McCarthy begins campaign, slams opponent Wilson for 'timid tenure'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy, standing on the same pier where he and his parents arrived as immigrants from New Zealand in 1934, launched his campaign for the U.S. Senate nomination Monday with a vow to focus on incumbent Republican Sen. Pete Wilson.

McCarthy referred to Wilson as "the unknown senator from California."

"Sen. Wilson has had a timid tenure in five years. Apparently, his approach is to offend few by laying low. My message to Pete

"Apparently, his approach is to offend few by laying low. My message to Pete Wilson is this: 'Pete, lead or move aside. People want elected officials to make tough decisions' "

— Leo McCarthy

Wilson is this: 'Pete, lead or move aside. People want elected officials to make tough decisions,'" he said.

McCarthy criticized Wilson for voting against every budget proposal put forward by either party, joining other Republicans in blocking a defense authorization bill and voting against urban and rural funds.

McCarthy is running against fellow Democrat Bill Press for the nomination. They are seeking the same seat held by Wilson, who is running unopposed for the Republican nomination. The primary election is next June.

Another Democrat, Secretary of State March Fong Eu, dropped out of the Senate race in October.

"My father seized the opportunity to create a better life for his family. My father's generation left us with much hope and promise," McCarthy said. "I am running because I see that hope and promise threatened for our children."

"I don't want to leave a lower standard of living for our children," he said.

McCarthy has a 35-point edge over Press, a former Brown administration official working for KABC-TV in Los Angeles.

According to a Teichner Associates survey released Sunday, 45 percent of the 694 Democrats questioned backed the lieutenant governor, 10 percent supported Press and 45 percent were undecided.

The poll, taken Nov. 10-13, had a margin of error of 3.8 percentage points. It was published Sunday in the Sacramento Bee. It was also conducted for KCRA-TV in Sacramento and KABC-TV.

Gas prices fall during holidays

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The price of regular unleaded gasoline has dropped 0.6 cents since October and Thanksgiving holiday travelers will find it selling for an average of 99 cents a gallon at self-service stations, according to a survey released Monday.

The price drop was the first for that type of fuel since January in the California State Automobile Association's monthly survey of 600 service stations in Nevada and in Northern and Central California.

Regular leaded self-service fuel is 93 cents a gallon, down 0.7 cents since October. The auto club noted these unleaded and leaded retail prices were up 13 to 15 cents a gallon since November 1986.

The survey said 2,450,000 Californians were expected to be driving over Thanksgiving holiday, up 7 percent from a year ago.

her in there, she said. "They feel confident when asking questions, they know I'm not going to put them down, but no one else here will either. I think more people would use the facility if they knew about it."

"I notice when guys come in they'll see me sitting behind the counter but will look around for a guy. Then they'll ask someone who is working on their car who is in charge and they say, 'she is' then they come to me."

Lucero said she sometimes doesn't know what the guys are doing, but she just asks them. "It's a learning job. I have no problem with guys that come in here."

Lucero, an agricultural science major, was hired at the beginning of the spring quarter and has a deeply ingrained interest in mechanics. While growing up with two brothers, one younger and one a twin, she said they would often talk around the dinner table about someday having the best and the fastest cars.

But she began working on cars out of necessity.

"I did it because I was tired of getting ripped off by mechanics," she said, adding that because she has owned older cars she has learned to fix common problems.

She learned the basics of mechanics from her father and brothers, but since working at the Hobby Garage she is always learning more.

"I learn as I go," she said. "I took a diagnostics class in agricultural engineering that gave me more basics on how to determine what is wrong when I hear certain sounds. When Roger is working on a car I'll ask him what he's doing. If I have a chance to put it into practice it's all the better. Practice makes perfect."

The job is good for Lucero, who said she needs to learn as much as she can because after graduating she plans to teach high school agricultural mechanics.

"I need to be really proficient since (the mechanical field) is so man-oriented," she said. "Once I show the students I know what I'm doing, they'll have a lot of respect. Maybe I can get more females interested."

The Hobby Garage is open Thursdays from 2 to 5 p.m., Fridays from 1 to 6 p.m., Saturdays from 9:30 to 5:30 and Sundays from 12 to 4 p.m.

thropy, besides just fraternities and sororities."

Warren said anyone who contributes will receive a free KCPR bumper sticker and $1 off a T-shirt.

People's Kitchen was targeted by many groups because they're setting up shelters for homeless. John Zuchelli, KCPR news director, said he feels comfortable working to give to Grass Roots II.

"If we give it to Grass Roots II we know it will get into the hands of those who really need it," he said.

Other student groups are giving to Grass Roots II's annual Thanksgiving dinner. Maxine Lewis, director of Grass Roots II, said the holiday season can cause people to feel confused and lonely, especially if families are unable to get together.

"People need to feel a part where people are concerned and care. I've found in San Luis Obispo that city people really care about the less fortunate and express love, fellowship and concern."

Hospice of San Luis Obispo County, an organization dealing with people with life-threatening illnesses, will hold their third annual tree-lighting ceremonies. Each area in the county has its own ceremony and San Luis Obispo's will be held in the Mission Plaza Dec. 3 at 6 p.m.

Gail Smith of Hospice of San Luis Obispo said anyone can contribute $10 in remembrance of a loved one or friend, or in honor of someone living. There will then be a light on the tree representing that person and their name will be posted in a book.

More than 16 student groups are getting in on the Christmas spirit of giving. Residents of some Cal Poly dorms are skipping a meal, SCARAB is conducting a scavenger hunt, other groups are carolling to retirement homes and convalescent centers. Rec Sports organized a Turkey Trot and a Christmas card drive and several groups are donating trees and organizing canned food and toy drives.

Rula Lenska says, "All my men read Mustang Daily — or they read nothing at all."

"Kicking Cocaine Is The Hardest Thing I Didn't Have to Do Alone."

I thought cocaine was one of life's little rewards. Then, it became my life.

Who'd ever think a little line of coke now and then would lead to a full-blown addiction? Not too many do. Especially the people who use it.

Our chemical dependency program has a special plan just for cocaine dependencies. We know that the reasons someone chooses cocaine—the invincible feelings of strength, power and brightness—are also the feelings that make it difficult to quit and get help.

Cocaine can easily go from recreational use to wreaking havoc with your life; finances, career, family, friends and health. Physical signs may include pains, constantly running nose, seizures and insomnia.

Coke abuse is making addicts of America's finest. It's not an isolated drug of youthful experimentation or urban blight. It's in your community—your schools, your boardroom, maybe in your life.

Questions about cocaine? Call us. We'll answer confidentially and carefully. Remember, kicking cocaine is something no one needs to do alone. We can help you or someone you know regain control of life.
